JOB DESCRIPTION AND POSITION REQUIREMENTS:
Penn State DuBois

Position: Lecturer or Assistant Teaching Professor of Criminal Justice

Appointment: Full-time, term appointment for one year (36 weeks with possibility of renewal), teaching-line faculty position beginning January 2024.

Position Summary: Penn State DuBois seeks applicants for a term non-tenure track Lecturer or Assistant Teaching Professor position in Criminal Justice. Preference will be given to individuals who have a strong commitment to high-quality instruction in a student-centered environment. Scholarly achievement that demonstrates potential for independent scholarship and research is desirable. Penn State DuBois is committed to and accountable for advancing diversity, equity, and inclusion in all its forms. We embrace individual uniqueness, foster a culture of inclusion that supports both broad and specific diversity initiatives, leverage the educational and institutional benefits of diversity, and engage all individuals to help them thrive. We value inclusion as a core strength and an essential element of our public service mission.

- The successful candidate would teach four courses (12 credits) each semester, eight different courses per year ranging from introductory level to upper-level classes in the Criminal Justice Program. Courses would include Research Methods; Criminal Justice Ethics; Introduction to Courts; Introduction to Criminal Justice; Race, Crime, and Justice; and Capstone classes. Teaching assignments for the classroom may require teaching day, evening and/or Saturday classes as needed. Participation in campus, university, and community service activities are required.

Commitment to diversity is paramount to the mission of the department through service, instruction, and curriculum development. All full-time faculty are expected to engage in scholarly activities, participate actively as a campus, institutional, and professional citizen, and advise a caseload of undergraduate students. Outstanding teaching and mentoring contributions at the undergraduate level and an ongoing commitment to academic and pedagogical excellence are expected.

Qualifications: Minimum of a master's degree in Criminal Justice or Criminology or a related field for a Lecturer rank appointment. A Ph.D. is required for an Assistant Teaching Professor appointment. Experience with online courses required. Commitment to high quality teaching is evidenced using a variety of modalities, including contemporary distance education technologies. Evidence of commitment to diversity, equity, and social justice in research, service, or teaching. Dedicated to teaching and mentoring first-generation, underrepresented minority, and non-traditional college students.

About Penn State DuBois: Penn State DuBois, one of the 24 Penn State campuses statewide, is situated in north central Pennsylvania about seventy miles west of State College/University Park and one hundred miles northeast of Pittsburgh. It is a commuter campus. The student-centered faculty and staff are dedicated to excellence in teaching and learning. Class sizes are small, and the student/faculty ratio is 24:1, so students can receive much individual attention. Since opening its doors in 1935, thousands of degree-seeking individuals have received a world-class education delivered in a friendly, small-campus setting. Solid ties to business, industry, and the community help enhance the strong academics of the Penn State DuBois experience, creating a well-rounded foundation for lifelong learning. Today, Penn State DuBois continues to prepare leaders for the twenty-first century through a continuing tradition of innovative technology, faculty expertise, and dedication to excellence. The campus offers six Bachelor's degrees, seven Associate degrees, and the first 2 years of over 160 Penn State undergraduate degree programs. Additional information is available at <https://dubois.psu.edu/>.

Application: Applicants are required to submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, diversity statement, teaching statement, and list of three references; other information pertinent to the position may also be included. Application review begins immediately and continues until the position is filled.
